Teaching

MSc thesis supervision, Dept. of Political Science, University of Copenhagen Spring 2025

– Supervised 3 theses on political behavior using experiments.

BA project workshops, Dept. of Political Science, University of Copenhagen Fall 2022, Spring 2023

– Supervised approx. 100 BA students in weekly workshops on quantitative methods for their bachelor's thesis projects.

Methods 2/3, Dept. of Political Science, University of Copenhagen Spring 2022, Fall 2022

- I taught classes of approx. 40 undergraduate students each and graded 55 assignments. The most advanced quantitative methods course of the undergraduate program in political science (restructured/renamed in 2022). Topics include logistic regression, panel data, RDD, and IV.
- Average evaluation of 4.92/5 (N=48) averaged across the two questions specific to my teaching: how well I helped students learn the content, and how well I ensured everyone felt safe asking questions.
- 'Christoffer is one of the most competent and welcoming teachers I have met on the program. He always does his absolute best to convey the content precisely and understandably with tangible examples, and most importantly, you are never afraid to ask questions because Christoffer always takes the time to answer in an informative and friendly way.' (anonymous student, 2022)

Former Employment

University of Warwick, Department of Politics and International Studies Dec. 2018 – Jul. 2019

- Research assistant on a project about authoritarian religious movements.

University of Warwick, Department of Economics Jul. 2018–Nov. 2018

- Research assistant on a project about the financial sector and labor market volatility.
